Scotiabank and Baraud took Top Employer honors at the annual Cayman Islands Society of Human Resources Professionals awards gala at the Grand Cayman Marriott Beach Resort on Saturday.

It was the fourth time Scotiabank has received the top award for the large employer category. Recruitment and personnel specialists Baraud earned the top spot for a small/medium-sized business for the first time; the company came in second last year.

The Top Employer awards, now in their sixth year, honor the best places to work in the Cayman Islands. Organizations are encouraged to submit applications, and then their employees are quizzed over what it's really like to work at the company. Only those organizations that get a high score from the judges – all independent human resources professionals based overseas – earn the right to call themselves a Top Employer.
