

Scotia Global Equity Fund

Quarterly fund highlights

As of March 31, 2024

Market Review

Global equities had an 8.2% return in the 1st quarter of 2024. Equity market gains were due to the continued strong performance of U.S. and Japanese stocks, which outperformed most other European, Asian and Emerging Market equities. The 10 largest U.S. companies, primarily from the technology and communications sectors, accounted for over 50% of the gain in U.S. equities for the quarter. U.S. Real GDP expanded at an annualized rate of 1.6% in Q1, which was significantly lower than the 3.4% in Q4 2023. Personal Consumption Expenses (PCE), the Fed's preferred measure of inflation, increased from 2.6% in December 2023 to 2.7% in March 2024. U.S. policymakers indicated that they do not intend to lower interest rates from their current level of 5.5% until they have greater confidence that inflation is on track to reach its 2% target.

Fund Performance* and Positioning

The Fund had a net of fee return of 3.5% for 1 month and 7.1% for the 3 months ending March 31, 2024.

The Fund's strategy changed from investing in factor-based ETFs to individual securities in mid-February 2024. The portfolio manager had not completed the transition of the Fund's holdings to the new strategy by March 31. Therefore, quarterly performance attribution on securities and sector allocations was not provided due to its low information value.

The Fund is actively managed with a core style and will generally invest in between 28 and 40 companies in both developed and emerging markets. It invests in high quality, well managed businesses with sustainable competitive advantages, strong balance sheets and a solid track record of value creation. The portfolio manager has a disciplined investment process that is based on fundamental analysis and a longer-term perspective to provide upside participation and downside protection compared to the Fund's benchmark.

Outlook

Resilient GDP growth, low unemployment, and persistently high inflation, primarily due to the high costs of housing, have tempered expectations regarding the number and timing of potential interest rate cuts. As a result, the U.S. Federal Reserve is expected to lower rates later and more gradually than many other developed market central banks. There is an elevated risk of slower or negative growth and continued high inflation following the unprecedented global shocks to supply and demand. The economy and financial markets may also be impacted from high levels of geopolitical risk.
